Hijacked jumbo released by terrorists

ADEN. — The hijacked Lufthansa jumbo jet took off from Aden for Frankfurt yesterday, with all its crew, a Lufthansa director and several technicians aboard - having earlier been surrendered by the Palestinian hijackers who acted on a coded message from Beirut. The five hijackers were detained by Aden authorities for questioning, and later released.

When the plane was hijacked over India on Monday, the five terrorists declared they were protesting against West German aid to Israel and closer ties between some Arab countries and Bonn. However, the specific demands asked in ex-change for the plane and trew re-main unclear, and the tenns finally agreed upon are likewise the subject of speculation.

A aifferent kina of interpretation

Pinno Recital by Walter Hautrig (Targ Music Centre, Ein Karem, February 21). Mozart: Adagio, K. 459; Fantasy. K. 688; Becthoven: Sonata Opus 111; Schubert: Moments Musicaux, D. 788; Ginastera: Sonata (1852).

TISITING planist Walter Hautzig gave us an exciting confrontawith a different kind of musical interpretation, showing he is both a strong-willed musician and a sensitive artist. Hautzig's playing seems a complex mixture of Viennese traditional joie de vivre, con-tinental schooling (Schnabel), con-temporary reflexes (percussive treatment of the instrument) and a cosmopolitan, or even humanistic attitude. He applied a wide range of dynamics (from softest pp to full orchestral fortissimo), with fine gradations of touch showing a highly developed sense for tone quality.

Occasionally there was a rough attack on the keyboard, the performance did not always conform with conventional presentations, but it was thought-provoking. Timing and phrasing were not always completely controlled, but everything he did was carried by a strong personality and a convincing musical temper-ment. Interpretations, though intellectually planned and worked out, were given full-blooded treatment, with never a dull moment.

Mozart was represented by two of his most etxraordinary pieces: the adagio in B minor, a tragic, bitter, despairing movement, and the Fantasy in F minor, better known in its form for two planes transcribed by Busoni from the manuscript for an Organ Piece for a Clock), a highly polyphonic three nts, expressive, passionate, sad. Both works - much closer to Beethoven than to the playful Roccoco - were performed with dramatic intent and emotional depth. They also prepared one for the subsequent Beethoven Sonata which translated into gigantic proportions what Mozart had said in smaller terms. A forceful, impressive rendition made the thunderous first movement sound like a tranic protest, a proud rebellion against an unavoidable fate. The Arietta generally approached like an apo-theosis — sounded in its variations like glowing embers suddenly burst. Mr. Malcohn was too preoccupied ing into fiame. The Israel Chamber Ensemble. Subscription Concert No. 4. Canductor and soloist, George Malcolm, harpsichord. (Tel Ariv, Beit Hahayal, February 28), Furcell: Three Fantasies for string instruments; Sergin Natra: Music for harpsichord and six instruments; De Falla: Concerto for harpsichord and five instruments; Nicholas Maw: Senata for two herns and strings; Bach: Concerto in D miner for harpsichord and string or chestra.

HAD Mr. Malcolm participated in this concert as an harpsichord player only, his achievements would have impressed considerably, but as he conducted too, I cannot but say he has neither the personality nor the skill to lead an orchestra. The mishaps started with the first work, Purcell's Three Fantasies. Mr. Malcolm worked through them aimlessly; there was no form, no frame, only an amorphous assembly of sounds and melodies.

The harpsichord part in Sergiu Natra's Music for harpsichord and six instruments was given a competent and occasionally original treatment, but the work has to be seen in its total context, and cooperation between the soloist and the instrumental group was unsatisfactory.

Gas grenades fail to free Japan hostage

KARUIZAWAWN, Japan (Reuter). A police barrage of more than 20 tear gas grenades Wednes-day failed to dislodge left-wing revolutionaries who have been holding a housewife hostage for five

One of the grenades crashed through a bathroom window of a mountain villa where the wanted five gummen are holding 31-year-old Mrs. Yasuko Muta as hostage. Clouds of gas billowed out through the shattered window, but there was no sign of the ville's occupants and police withdrew to continue their war of nerves with loudspeaker appeals. Officers then crept close to the tightly-shuttered villa, in mid-afternoon, under cover of a smoke screen, and protected by armoured cars.

Three shots were fired at them but no one was hurt. At least four people, including three policemen, have been wounded by shotgun or rifle fire during the five-day slege. The other wounded man - snacl bar owner Yasuhiko Tanaka, who tried to enter the villa Tuesday as a replacement hostage — was reported in worsening condition after the removal of a bullet from his head. A hospital spokesman said Tanaka had lapsed into a coma.

PARENTS VERSUS CHILDREN

By DAVID DAVIDSON (Grade 12) Hugim High School

THE so-called generation gap, is the result of the difference in ways of thinking and seeing things. Adults have been educated long ago, while their children are taking their first children are steps in life.

The young are always being told what they should do or not do. A child has to listen to his parents, because he is dependent on them, he is told not to smoke, drink, come home late, he is told to wear a sweater when he goes out, he is stuffed with food at meal times. The trouble with this system is that the child has no independent experience, he is never able to try to see things for himself, all his behaviour is based on his parents' education, which is old and out of date for

These things cause a break-down in the relationship between the two "camps": the child rebels and the parents hit back and fight for their views of life. Then the child becomes hostile to the parents. But some parents can have a good relationship with their children, they understand them and identify with them. Such parents remember how they themselves suffered from their parents. Parents should be educated again after they have children, by means of courses and reading books on how to bring

Since the parents cannot control the child, they should give him more freedom in life, so that he can choose for himself what he thinks is good for him.

NO HOPE OF PEACE

By MEIR GINSBERG (Grade 12) Hugim High School, Haifa

CENERALLY there are conflicts between parents and children. I think that conflicts arise because of different points of view about various subjects. Parents belong to one generation and children to another. There are always changes of thought and education through the generations, therefore parents see things differently from their children.

Children think that they know better than their parents what ferent points of view.

One year ago yesterday, 24 Soviet Jews staged a sit-in at the Supreme Soviet of the U.S.S.R. demanding the right to emigrate to Israel. Twenty of them are now in Israel; the others, all engineers, were dismissed from their jobs, and told that five years from their dismissal they also would be permitted to leave. EPHRAIM SEVELA, a professional film writer in Russia and one of the demonstrators, tells about the sit-in in this excerpt from "The League of the Mute," his "film script" description of the event. Names of the persons involved have been changed.

The author of this article, Ephraim Sevela, is shown at Moscow Central Airport in January of 1971, a month before the sit-in, seeing friends off to Israel Standing a little distance behind Mr. Sevela is a KGB agent who, according to the author, followed bim regularly.

AT TEL AVIV UNIVERSITY:

T.E.C. MAKES VITAL CONTRIBUTION TO ISRAEL ECONOMY

T.E.C., the Top Executive Course of the Leon Recanati Graduate School of Business Administration, was formed shortly after the Six Day War. It came into being after Keren Hanadiv, a Rothschild Family Foundation sent a group of experts to Israel to determine what bottlenecks were seriously affecting the Israel economy. The group recommended the expansion of training pro-grammes for Israel's executives. The Top Executive Course was established as a result of an agreement between the Founda-tion and Tel Aviv University.

The T.E.C. programme at Tel Aviv University, which offers intensive courses exclusively for top level managerial personnel in business, industry and govern-ment, is the first of its kind in the country.

The overall objective of Tel Aviv University's T.E.C. programme is to provide the nation's economy with first-rate managerial personnel by developcation at an academic level to meet the varying needs of the nation's ton executives, by secursenior executives so that the programme can directly influence actual management practices in the country and by acquainting senior executives with the latest concepts and techniques in modern management.

Among the programmes spon-sored by the T.E.C. is a series of seminars and workshops on Israel and the World Economy, conducted by Israeli and international experts. Last year's seminars dealt with Israel and the European Economic Community and Israel and the International Capital Markets. The subject of this year's seminar which is to take place from April 30-May 1, will Israel and Corporation. Highlight of the seminar will be lectures by Prof. Raymond Vernon of the Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration

The T.E.C.'s activities are considered vital to the nation's economic progress.

YESTERDAT'S PRESS:

Ha'aretz (non-party) says that "It is unacceptable that Dr Jarring should mediate between Israel and Egypt on a special settlement. The U.S. also does not favour it. Egypt alone holds the key to changing Is-rael's position. Should it emerge during Dr. Jarring's stay in Jerusalem that Egypt's position has not changed, the deadlock in his mission will continue to prevail, The U.S. initiative for a partial settlement is still dent Sadat to decide whether to accept it or not." Omer (Histadrut) writes that "Dr. Jarring's mediation is not to be preferred to the U.S. initiative. It is becoming increasingly clear that Dr. Jarring pays greater heed to Calro and Moscow, taking less cognizance of Israel's views."

Hamodia (Agudat Yisrael) says that Dr. Jarring's attempt to revive his mission "Is a political manoeuvre, designed to frustrate the U.S. initiative for a partial settlement. By 50 doing, Jarring is serving Moscow's machinations.

"Perhaps this attitude has some-and politicians, a close community. "But some special factors may also be involved. First, the strength of the Israel labour movement. In most developing countries - particularly in Africa — the trade unions, which were in the vanguard during the fight against colonialism, withered after the attainment of independence. Most of the best people mov-ed from trade union activity to state administration, which became the centre of power. Not so in Israel,

where the Histadrut still remains a strong social force on its own

"Secondly, the Histadrut is not confining its activity to the class struggle. It is engaged in many social and economic programmes which go beyond the scope of its members as mere wage-earners. It controls a number of business enterprises which must be properly managed in order to be viable. Last but not least, its constitution is so framed as to give prepon-

imposing discipline on unions which increasingly consider themselves autonomous, if not independent."

"The trend may indeed be moving in that direction," replied Mr.

Jenks, "but as far as I am informed it is still the Histadrut, not the individual unions, which is in effective control of collective bar-brings in its wake a rapid increase in the size of plants, enterprises, trade unions and so on. Inevitably the distance grows between the officials and the rank and file. Remoteness tends to undermine mutual understanding and to cause friction.

Moreover, union members become increasingly educated, and are less ready to follow without questioning

I asked: "In this country gepitals, Jerusalem Labour Council spokesman Israel Cohen said last The nurses, for example, have not received the salary increases won for them by the Nurses' Union after the last strike, he said. The Labour Council says that Bikur Holim is in the throes of a severe financial crisis but "the workers cannot hold out any longer." If the administration does not come to an arrangement, a general strike will be declared on Wednesday, the Councii says. (According to the Post Office spokesman, Bikur Holim has not paid its phone bill since last July, and some of its lines have been disconnected.) Agudat Yisrael's Knesset faction has demanded an urgent debate in the House on the threatened strike and on the grave state of the hospital's finances.

Opposition leader: T.A. has computers,

but no programmers By SARAH HONIG, Jerusalem Post Reporter
TEL AVIV. — Mayor Yehoshus Rabinowitz rejected a proposal by opposition leader Menahem Savidor at the last Municipal Finance Committee meeting that he appoint a four-man committee to examine the possible reorganization of the City's rates collecting division, Complaining that the division's work is bogged down by gross inefficiency, Mr. Savidor proposed that the committee include one coalition member, one opposition Councillor and two administration and computer experts.

Mr. Rabinowitz admitted that the division is inefficient, but said that responsibility for shortcomings must be borne by the administration and it alone is to choose the remedies. Mr. Savidor said that the City is misleading the public by claiming that its computers are responsible for many erroneous bills and notices of property seizures sent to Tel Aviv residents. "The com-puter only makes mistakes when it is badly programmed, and after having spent millions of the rate-payers' money to obtain these computers, the city should see that they are well used," he said. He went on to describe the "torture route" which a resident coming to clear up an error has to take. "He is first sent to the reception clerk on the third floor, scho sends him back to the ground floor to see the accountant there. With the accountant's certificates, he goes back up to the third floor clerk, who again sends him to the fourth floor tax assessor. After returning to the third floor clerk, he is sent to the cashier on the ground floor — providing the matter is cleared up by then.

Division heads, Mr. Savidor said, told him that each year the
